

“Mark of Excellence” awarded to Bosch Conettix IP modules by Factory Mutual October 19, 2006

Fairport, NY – Bosch Security Systems, Inc. has received the Factory Mutual (FM) Insurance Company “Mark of Excellence” Approval for the C900V2 Dialer Capture Module, DX4020 Network Interface Module and D6680 Network Adapter when used with Bosch’s Conettix D6600 Communications Receiver/Gateway. This “Mark of Excellence” tells customers that these products conform to the highest standards of loss prevention and help fulfill jurisdictional requests in factory and industrial environments.

FM provides services, research and resources to help insurance policy holders prevent and control property losses, particularly in industrial facilities. FM Approvals set the standard in third-party certification of property loss prevention products and services globally. Industrial and commercial companies around the world rely on products and services that are FM Approved and specification tested. The FM APPROVED mark, backed by scientific research and testing, tells customers that Bosch product conforms to the highest standards. The value of Approval by FM Approvals extends beyond product certification. FM Global clients worldwide know using FM Approved products to reduce or eliminate their property exposures means they are protecting their property with the highest quality products available.

Bosch’s Conettix IP is a complete, award-winning system for alarm and event data transmission over IP-based networks. It is the perfect solution for reducing security system costs while ensuring the most reliable, fastest alarm communication for commercial and industrial facilities. Features including end-to-end supervision and advanced encryption make it well suited for high security applications.

Receiving FM Approval provides Bosch dealers and distributors with immediate sales opportunities for the C900V2, DX4020 and D6680 Conettix products in accounts that require FM certified components and enhances Bosch’s reputation as a consistent provider of industry-leading communication products that improve and advance property loss prevention practices.
