

BOSCH G SERIES CONTROL PANELS SUPPORT INOVONICS ECHOSTREAM WIRELESS COMPONENTS August 28, 2007

Fairport, N.Y. - Bosch Security Systems, Inc., a full-line manufacturer of high-quality security solutions, has added support for Inovonics' latest commercial wireless platform – Echostream® – to its G Series control panels.

The Echostream platform uses 900 MHz spread spectrum technology to provide superior range and reliability for wireless peripherals. Inovonics' range of universal transmitters, intrusion detectors, smoke detectors, emergency pendants and repeaters for the Echostream platform can be seamlessly integrated to G Series control panels using the Bosch D8125INV interface modules. The modules will provide up to 238 wireless points per Bosch G series panel.

The G Series control panels include three models – D7212GV2, D7412GV2 and D9412GV2 – to meet the needs of applications of varying sizes. The panels are scaleable and easy to use. Key features include integration of intrusion, fire and access control components, two-person disarm for greater security, and early ambush, which requires redundant confirmation that a facility is safe at first entry and again after an inspection.
